

My Field Trip To O.W.H. T.V. Studio

December 7, 2019

By: Prince Semaj Belay Ex Rel: James Jefferson III

My field trip to the O.W.H. TV Studio was amazing, the location and building is a Historical Landmark because of the great Marcus Garvey, who was one of the revolutionaries for the Moors. This is also the same historical building where the black panthers hosted their very first community breakfast in 1969. Now my great uncle Bishop James Watkins owns the building and has turned it into a high end, state of the art, TV Studio for the community, and continues to follow in the steps of those before him; along with the help of his wonderful staff and volunteers. O.W.H. stand for "Overcomers With Hope" and hope is exactly what my great uncle is giving to his community by teaching people to tell their stories through media.

When I first arrived at O.W.H. TV Studio, I was greeted by my Great Uncle Bishop James Watkins, he began telling me all about the youth program, and all the cool thing that goes on in the building like the gamers that meet up once a month; and that's when I got excited. Next, we walked to the TV Studio there I saw lots of cool state of the art equipment, and I was very impressed. There was also a raffle going on at the time so my mom and dad purchased 6 tickets; and won a turkey dinner. Soon after a man walked up to me and gave me his 6 raffle tickets because he had to leave; and I won a 46 inch TV with those same tickets, I found out later that his name is Carl Davis and he is the president of the Black Chamber of Silicon Valley; My field trip to the O.W.H. TV Studio was indeed amazing.